By Lia

In the cold, white, mountains lives the arctic wolf; the Arctic Wolf is on the top of the food chain in the arctic mountains. Are you ready to experience some interesting facts about the arctic wolf? Here are some physical characteristics, and information on how the arctic wolf raises its family and how it they hunt for food. I chose an arctic wolf because they are loud and are flawless white.

Physical Characteristics

One of the way's it uses its fur, is its fur matches the environment it lives. Who wouldn't you want that ability? Anyway back to the paper, well it uses its fur to blend in with the snow and when the pray they are waiting for comes they attack. I will tell you three main facts about the arctic wolf. The one scary fact about the arctic wolf is that its natural predator is man! They live in a harsh interment so there food is scarce and they mostly eat caribou, muskoxen, small game such as pike, shrews, and snowshoe hare's.

Family

The second fact is that the arctic wolf depends on their family more than people the only wolfs that can have pups is the alpha pare, the alpha's is the boy leader and the girl leader. Their litter size is up to 14 pups, but usually 4-8. Wouldn't that be a lot of kids!?

Hunting for food

The third and final fact is the characteristics. The arctic wolf comes in all different colors like white, brown, and tan. The females weigh 80-140 pounds and the males are typically 175-176 pounds. Some of the arctic wolfs are 3 feet in length when full grown and some are twice that size. They are big, fierce, sneaky, light on foot, and have a lot a lot of pups (a lot!).☺
